

y_e = /I/

byte

type

rhyme*

dyne

tyre

thyme*

dyke

tyke

argyle ..... 15

hype

Clyde ..... 10

enzyme

lyre ..... 5

Kyle

megabyte

pyre

style

gigabyte

* rh = /r/, th = /t/ is not very common, e.g. in Thomas.

---

In Old and Middle English "y" was often used instead of "i". When "y" is a vowel it still works like the letter "i", e.g. hymn, sky, happy, rhyme; also bay/bait, boy/boil, key/ceiling.

(mn = /n/, rh = /r/)